STARK COUNTY IN WORLD WAR

Prosperity Separates and Adversity Reunites a People

When the clarion cry of war was sounded in Washington on April 6, 1917, it reverberated over a land which reaches from the rising to the setting sun, for the birds in the tree tops of Eastern Maine welcome the dawn before the seals in the far western Aleutian Islands of Alaska have ceased to seek the scant warmth of the Arctic setting sun.

From tropic heat to icy north the electric impulse flashed the funeral dirge of tyranny; the bells took up the peon and the dire reverberations penetrated even the hermits' huts in the lonely solitudes of the wilderness. A hundred million hearts swelled in a hundred million breasts and a hundred million heads were bared and bowed to the will of an All-wise Maker. The low murmur of a hundred million prayers—

"Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done,
On earth even as it is in Heaven."

was but the rumbling of a gathering storm which was destined to sweep from its path the last vestiges of earthly kingdoms. How the storm gathered, how it gained momentum, how it uprooted every prejudice and swept before it every barrier beggars an attempt at description and explanation. Perchance the glory of the victory is discernible only in the gleam of hope in the eyes of the populous just as the terror of the storm is discernible only in the eye of the traveler whom it has scared speechless.

Civilization Makes Men Cowards Only When the Cause Is Unjust

But a century ago Stark County was a wilderness of wild roses, where the nuts and berries ripened and fell ungathered save by the birds and the squirrels and the clear running brooks rippled on to the seas unpolluted by the refuse of industry. It were better, aye, far better that Stark County had remained a primeval forest and the rendezvous of brave Redmen than to have become what it is today, if, in becoming such, brave hearts were sacrificed for slacking selfishness. The ancients believed that mercantile pursuits rendered men unfit for war or deeds of bravery and there were those among us, schooled too much in the things and thoughts of the past, who feared that the present generations were not warriors.

Where in history, in fiction or in fable were brave hearts called upon to leap into the clouds and float into the arms of the enemy to do battle with myriads single handed? Where and when were men asked to dive into the seas to break mammoth floating arsenals in twain? Where does history record a call for heroes to brave the sulphurous gasses of hell in order to destroy its dominion. Where does fiction even intimate that its brave were asked to wade into battle with steel arrows raining incessantly from the heavens? Where in all history, sacred or secular, and where in all this wide land is there any evidence of greater patriotism than was shown by Stark County, Ohio? The Glory of Greece with its Spartans and Rome with its Caesar has been sung by the poets but the glory of America in its battles to make the world safe for democracy transcends the vision of the poet, the score of the musician or the brush of the painter and makes the historian but a chronicler of numbers of men, tons of metal and lists of dates.

Perhaps, by a wise decree of fate, the war with all its memories is to pass into oblivion and those who fought in it or worked in it are some day to be remembered only by what they have done for the world, but this volume is dedicated to their memory with the hope that their honor and reward will not be less than their miraculous deeds.

CHAPTER I

Cost in Men and Materials

Years of tabulation by Government Statisticians will be required before authentic figures can be given and Stark County will not know how many of her sons went forth to war for some considerable time to come because of the rush to other cities for enlistment in the various units of the American Expeditionary Forces.

Some conception of the magnitude of the war can be obtained from the following tabulation:

At the time of the signing of the Armistice, Nov. 11, 1918, the United States Army numbered as follows:

In Europe, Siberia and in transit to Europe.	2,086,000
In the United States.	2,714,000
Total.	4,800,000
United States troops actually engaged in battle.	1,390,000

The battle deaths for all nations as far as can be obtained from official reports is as follows:

Russia	1,700,000
Germany	1,600,000
France	1,385,300
Austria	800,000
England	900,000
Italy	364,000
Turkey	250,000
Belgium	102,000
Bulgaria	100,000
Roumania	100,000
Serbia, Montenegro	125,000
United States	50,300
Greece	7,000
Portugal	2,000

Total.....7,485,600

In the three registrations held in the United States, a total of 24,234,021 men registered for army service. Of this number 2,810,206 were inducted. Ohio furnished exclusive of officers 200,293. Sixty-five to sixty-nine per cent of those examined in this state passed the physical tests.

The enormous amount of clothing and supplies necessary for an army of almost five million men can scarcely be conceived. The following quantities were delivered to the Army from April 6th, 1917, to May 31, 1918:

Wool stockings (pairs)	131,800,000
Shoes (pairs)	30,700,000
Undershirts	85,000,000
Under drawers	83,000,000
Flannel shirts	26,500,000
Blankets	21,700,000
Wool breeches	21,700,000
Wool coats	13,900,000
Over coats	8,300,000

For the housing of soldiers, warehouses and plants for the manufacture of war materials the Government had 541 construction projects in this country and almost an equal number in Europe. These averaged $1,500,000 each.

For the distribution of supplies and troop movements our Engineers built in France 1000 miles of standard gauge and 125 miles of narrow gauge railroads. The Signal Corps strung in France 100,000 miles of telegraph and telephone wires. The largest number of telegrams sent over the wires in France in one day was 47,555 averaging 60 words each.

There was a total of 227,000 American machine guns built in this country, 3,500,000,000 rounds of small arm ammunition and 20,326,000 rounds of artillery ammunition. During the nineteen months the United States was in the war the Allies used 8,267,628,000 rounds of rifle and machine gun ammunition, 1,266,365,000 pounds of smokeless powder and 1,843,730,000 pounds of high explosives.

We produced over 8,000 training planes and shipped overseas 3,227 DeHavilland-4 bombing and observation planes. On November 11, 1918, we had 45 air squadrons at the front with an equipment of 740 air planes.

Two out of every three Americans who reached France took part in battle. An American Division consisted of some 28,000 men and officers and of the 42 Divisions sent overseas 29 took active part in combat service. Of these 29 combat divisions seven of them were Regular Army Divisions, 11 were organized from National Guard and 11 were made up of selective service men.

American divisions were in battle 200 days. During this time they were engaged in 13 major operations, of which 11 were joint enterprises with the French, British and Italians and two were distinctively American. Our greatest effort was put forth on the Meuse-Argonne front from September 20th to November 11th, when we had 1,200,000 men engaged. During this engagement we employed 2,417 guns in attack and fired 4,214,000 rounds of artillery ammunition, 840 air planes were used and these dropped 100 tons of explosives; 324 tanks took part in this engagement and the German lines were penetrated 34 miles. We liberated 150 villages and towns and captured 16,059 prisoners, 468 pieces of artillery, 2,864 machine guns and 177 trench mortars.

Mortality of United States Army to April 12, 1919:

Died of disease.....	57,460.....	50% of total deaths
Died in battle.....	50,280.....	43% of total deaths
Died of other injury.....	7,920.....	7% of total deaths

Total.....115,660

The total casualties of the American forces were as follows:

Killed in action	35,560
Died of wounds	14,720
Total dead	50,280
Wounded severely	90,830
Wounded slightly	80,480
Wounded, degree undetermined.....	34,380
Total wounded	205,690
Missing in action	46
Taken prisoners	4,480

Grand Total260,496

For a period of 25 months, from April, 1917, through April, 1919, the war cost the United States more than $1,000,000 an hour. The direct money cost of the war to the end of April, 1919, was $21,850,000,000. This sum of money is nearly large enough to pay the entire cost of our government from 1791 up to the outbreak of the European war. Our expenditures in this war were sufficient to have carried on the Revolutionary War continuously for more than a thousand years at the rate of expenditure which that war actually involved.

During the first three months, war expenditures were at the rate of $2,000,000 per day. The next year they averaged $22,000,000 a day and for the final ten months the daily total reached over $44,000,000.

The total cost to Germany in dollars was $39,000,000,000 and to the Allies $147,000,000,000, or a grand total of $186,000,000,000.

On November 11th the American Army was holding 21 miles of the Western Front, England 18 miles, France 55 miles and Belgium 6 miles. The total number of guns organized into batteries by the Allies was 29,348. The Allies had 6,406 battle airplanes against Germany's 2,730.

The foregoing figures will give an idea what modern warfare means. At this date it is impossible to give Ohio's part in the World War. Statistics are not available but suffice to say that the State of Ohio went over the top upon every demand made upon her.

CHAPTER II

Company C, 146th Infantry

The history of Company C, 146th Infantry dates back a quarter of a century. It is a history replete with military action, culminating in honorable and very active participation in the world war.

In the late '80s the Ohio National Guard was organized and Canton was given one of the units in the 8th Ohio Infantry which later became famous in two wars. Some of the best known men of Canton became identified with the organization at its birth and have ever cherished their associations with the company and regiment.

When the Spanish American War broke out, three companies were organized here and assigned to the Eighth Infantry, Ohio National Guard, which became known as "McKinley's Own" because of the fact that President McKinley was a Cantonian. Their regiment saw active service in Cuba, where it made a name for itself.

After the Spanish American War, the Ohio National Guard was reorganized and Company C was the outcome of old Company I in the war with Spain. The Eighth became known as the crack regiment of the Ohio National Guard and as such maintained its reputation until the close of the recent world war.

Several times it was called to quell rioting following labor trouble and lawlessness, the principal troubles being the coal strike at Dillonvale, the steel strike at Martin's Ferry, the street car strike and riots at Columbus, and the rioting and burning of East Youngstown. The regiment saw more than two weeks' service during the big floods of 1913, part of it being in Dayton, and the remainder of the Eighth, including Company C, at Zanesville.

When serious trouble broke out along the Mexican Border the Eighth was one of the first regiments called, and with it Company C went to El Paso, Texas, where it was stationed through the fall and winter of 1916-17, and gained an enviable reputation as one of the best regiments among the 50,000 National Guard mobilized there.

The regiment was mustered out of Mexican Border service on March 22, 1917, and Company C came home. Preparations were immediately made by its officers, which then consisted of Captain Harry F. Hazlett, 1st Lieut. H. W. Miner and 2nd Lieut. William G. Stutzman, for service in the world war.

A recruiting campaign was put on by the citizens of Canton, and Company C soon had 213 men on its roster. The tables of organization at that time permitted only 150 men per company, so many men were transferred to other organizations within the regiment.

Company C was called to duty in the world war on July 15, 1917, and immediately responded to a man. The next five weeks were spent in receiving partial equipment and preliminary training in the city. Company C established a camp east of the United Alloy plant for the last three weeks of its stay in Canton. This was named Canfield Himes, in honor of Master Canfield, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Himes. Mrs. Himes had been made honorary captain of Company C because of her Red Cross activities, and her labors on behalf of the men of the company who had volunteered for the service.

Just before being called into federal service in July, Miner was promoted to Captain of the Company, Lieut. Stutzman became 1st lieutenant and James G. Graham was named second lieutenant.

Company C moved south, to Camp Sheridan, Montgomery, Ala., leaving Canton on August 24, 1917. The local company went a month ahead of the remainder of the regiment, to help prepare the camp for the coming of the 37th Division, which designation had been given the Ohio National Guard.

After reaching Camp Sheridan, the 8th Ohio was given the number of 146th Infantry, the companies retaining their original letters.

The company remained at Camp Sheridan until May, 1918. During that time it went through a course of intensive training which put it in the wonderful physical condition and gave it the stamina to withstand the rigors of the tremendous campaigning of the last few weeks of the war in France and Belgium. During its stay at Camp Sheridan the company was assigned to many unusual tasks, and several honors. It also won the distinction of attaining the highest grade of any company in the regiment and equalled the highest mark in the division in special tests by war department and division inspectors.

The work at Sheridan was a forecast of the future of the company in action. In the training camp Company C was nearly always given the chief point of attack or defense in the regimental and battalion maneuvers. And so it became when the company went into real action after it got into the war in France.

At Camp Sheridan Lieut. James Graham was promoted and reassigned to the regimental supply company. 1st Sergeant Herbert I. Smith and Sergeant Karl F. Meyers were promoted to second lieutenants of the company and two other officers were attached. They were William McConnell of Canton and Stanley Butler of Huntington, W. Va. Later they left the division, going to Camp Meade, Md.

In May the division was transferred from Camp Sheridan to Camp Lee, Va., and prepared for overseas duty. The company was filled to 250 men, nearly 150 of them being green recruits just drafted into the service from eastern Pennsylvania and Maryland.

Two weeks were spent at Camp Lee, and then the regiment moved to Hoboken, N. J., where the 73rd Brigade, including the 145th and 146th regiments, two machine gun battalions, and division headquarters under command of Major General C. S. Farnsworth were placed aboard the Leviathan, the largest ship afloat which had been seized by America from Germany.

The Leviathan sailed from New York on June 15 and one week later, June 22, arrived at Brest, France, without having seen a sign of a submarine. The trip overseas was without incident, yet it will never be forgotten by the men of Company C. It was on this trip that Company C was first mentioned in war orders, being given credit for passing the best inspection of any company on the boat.

Three days were spent at the "rest camp," Pontenazen Barracks, and then the journey inland began. The division established headquarters at Bourmont, and Company C was stationed at a quaint old town of Outremecourt in the Vosges mountains along the main highway that Caesar built when he entered and conquered old Gaul.

The training period was continued there for one month and then the division was hurried to the front line sectors in the vicinity of Bacarret. The 146th Infantry headquarters was located at Vacqueville. Company C went into the first line trenches near St. Maurice and had its first contact with the Huns at that place. The company had been in the lines only 48 hours when the Boche laid down a bombardment on the positions of the first platoon, with the results that six men were injured, one so badly that he died, and of the others, only one came back to the company. Two of the others are permanently injured. Ten days were spent in the front trenches and then the company was relieved. Those ten days were the most exciting and among the hardest of any in the service because of the mental strain the men were under, it being their first experience.

After two weeks in the second line positions, the company was again moved up in support of the first line and spent 19 days under the Hun's big guns. Once more one of the platoon positions was heavily bombarded, but none of the Canton men were injured. Out of a period of 43 days for the regiment in this sector, Company C spent 29 days in direct contact with the enemy, having two "hitches." During the second time up, the company furnished nightly patrols and Company C men roamed "No Man's Land" at will, becoming so bold as to make daylight trips over to the side of the Boche.

On September 16th the division was relieved from duty in the Bacarret sector and moved up into position for the great Meuse-Argonne battle. For five days it was in position in the Bois de Recicourt (Woods of Recicourt) and on the morning of September 26, went over the top in the second wave of the 73rd Brigade.

The first day of the start of the big drive Company C acted as "moppers up" searching dug outs, trenches and hidden machine gun nests. This was after a veritable hell in the way of a bombardment. Night found the company with its regiment, half a mile south of Montfaucon, the citadel on the hill which had been the headquarters of the German Crown Prince in all his attacks upon Verdun. That night one battalion of the regiment moved into position and attacked Montfaucon on the morning of Sept. 27. The first battalion of the regiment supported and the city was captured before noon after many casualties had been suffered.

Company C had four men wounded here and the first platoon narrowly escaped being cut off in the town by German cross machine gun fire after it had gone to the rescue of Lieut. Fred Kochli, of Alliance, and his patrol.

On September 28th the regiment moved forward again, in the face of bitter German machine gun and artillery fire, and no artillery support of its own. The advance had been so rapid and the country so badly torn up by the American artillery that it was impossible to get our own artillery up to support the division. On that date the regiment captured the hills between Cierges and Nantillois, and there it was held for the next three days, unable to move forward because the divisions on the right and left could not get up to it. The flanks were exposed, tanks were brought into action time and again; it rained almost continuously. German artillery kept up an unceasing bombardment and no rations came up from the rear, yet the men stuck to their position. Company C went through all of it.

During this battle nine men of the company were killed and thirty-six wounded, including Lieutenant Gavin Harris. Among the killed were Corporals Ewing Jones and Emmet Weller, and Mechanic Floyd Hughes, of Canton. Hughes was afterward awarded the Distinguished Service Cross of valor in delivering a message under heavy fire. Other members of Company C later decorated for unusual bravery in the Argonne battle were 1st Sergeant Percy Blonde, Sergeant Louis Hechtel and Corporal Victor Porter.

The regiment was relieved in the Argonne on Oct. 1 and five days later found Company C in the front line trenches north of Xammes in the St. Mihiel sector. Ten days were spent there, during which time over half the men of the company were physical wrecks because of the hardships and exposures, yet they continued on duty. They were subjected to bombardments almost continuously and the Boche threw over great deal of gas. There were five casualties in the company from this source.

The regiment was relieved from duty there on October 16, and three days later was aboard trains bound for Belgium. There it was due to perform another great service. The 37th Division had been selected to represent the American army on the north end of the line. It crossed the famous No Man's Land at Ypres, and by forced marches spent a day and night in Staden, Lichtervelt and Thielt. It was given two days' rest at Thielt and vicinity and then moved to the vicinity of Olsrle, Belgium, on the Lys river, where, on the morning of October 31, it started the first famous drive to the Escault or Scheldt river. The division was given five days for the 12 miles, but the night of the second day found it on the banks of the Scheldt and it crossed, establishing a bridgehead. The drive on the part of the Ohioans was so fierce and fast that the French artillery supporting it could not keep up and got into very little action after the first five minutes of the start.

The regiment was then relieved and given a five-day rest, Company C being located at Meulbeke. There new equipment was issued and soon the Cantonians were ready for action again.

The second attack on the Germans in Belgium started on the night of November 9 near Symgem and Heuvele. All day Sunday, Nov. 10, was spent in forcing a second crossing of the Escault, two battalions of the 146th getting across. Captain Miner had taken command of the 1st battalion of the regiment when it entered Belgium and had his units in position to cross under cover of darkness and attack a hill and woods filled with German machine gun nests. Companies C and D were to have made this attack.

Just as darkness fell, word came from division headquarters that the Germans were sure to sign the armistice terms as laid down by Marshall Foch and that no more lives were to be sacrificed, but that troops would be held in the position where they were then located. Next morning word was received that the armistice had been signed and it was "Finis le Guerre," much to the great joy of every one.

On this same date, Lieutenant Stutzman received his order of Nov. 1st, 1919, promoting him to a captaincy for efficient service in the field, and went to Co. B, 146th Infantry, as Company Commander.

The regiment moved to Niederswalm, and was located there for ten days. Then came orders that the 37th Division was to follow the retreating Hun across Belgium and take up a position in the Army of Occupation. King Albert of Belgium visited the regiment and met many of the officers and men.

The regiment moved up ten miles, then orders were changed, and it was decided that the 37th Division would be one of the first returned to America. In the meantime, the division furnished four provisional companies to represent the American Army in the allied army that King Albert led into his capital, Brussels, from which he had been driven four years previously.

Captain Miner had command of the 200 men, the pick of the 146th Infantry, and the Americans were given the chief position in the parade. Everywhere the Yankees were received with acclaim by the Belgians who look upon America as their savior.

In December the regiment moved back to northern France, near Dunkirk, and was stationed there until the middle of January, then it moved to St. Dennis and vicinity, Company C being at LaPoote. Captain Miner had become regimental adjutant and Lieut. Karl Meyer was in command of the company, assisted by Lieut. Herbert Smith and Henry Breuer. Later Captain Miner was promoted to the grade of Major.

Preparations were made for the home coming and the regiment moved to Brest early in March, sailing from that Port on the Maui, on March 18. The troops arrived in New York on March 31 and went to Camp Dix where they stayed three days, then came back to old Ohio after an absence of nearly two years.

Ohio welcomed her own with open arms. The 146th Infantry paraded in Akron, Canton and Columbus, went to Camp Sherman, and was discharged from the service on April 13, 1919.

The records of the company show that 143 Canton men left with Company C when it started for its training camp, and only 62 men came back to this city with the company when it was mustered out of the service, the others being wounded, sent to the rear sick, or transferred to other units.

Nine members of the company were killed, more than forty wounded, four were decorated with the Distinguished Service Cross, the largest number awarded any one company in the entire division.

Every officer who went away with the company was promoted one grade. Four Sergeants were promoted to lieutenants in America, and two were given commissions overseas. Four other sergeants were in officers' training camps studying for commissions and would have received them if the war had lasted another week. These and four other men of the company were given lieutenantcies in the Officers' Reserve Corps when discharged.

The members of the company are entitled to three stars on their War Service medals, and their company flag is entitled to the ribbon bearing these actions: Bacarret Sector, Aug. 1 to Sept. 16; Meuse-Argonne, Sept. 26 to Oct. 1; St. Mihiel, Oct. 6 to Oct. 16; Ypres-Lys Offensives Oct. 31 to Nov. 4 and Nov. 9 to Nov. 11.

CHAPTER III

Company K, 146th Infantry, Alliance

Company K, 146th Infantry, of Alliance, is another of the veteran military organizations of Stark County, its history dating back to 1892. This organization had the honor of producing the colonel of its regiment for the world war, a distinction that came to few regiments in the American army.

Company K was organized and mustered into the Eighth Regiment, Ohio National Guard, on May 4, 1892. Its history is replete with action, it having participated in every event in which the regiment was called out, from beginning until the close of the world war. Its first tour of duty was in preventing a lynching in Alliance in 1893. During the miners' riots in 1894 in Belmont county the company was on duty sixteen days. During the war with Spain it was with the Eighth Regiment in Cuba, participating in the expedition to Santiago, and it served 38 days on the island. It was with the other companies of the regiment in the steel strike troubles and at East Youngstown, and also served excellently at Zanesville, Ohio, during the big floods in 1913.

When the call came for the Mexican Border in 1916, this organization was recruited to full war strength of 150 men and went to El Paso. While there, its captain, U. S. Wetzell, died in the service and the company was brought back to Alliance under command of Lieut. Fred Kochli.

In the world war the company left Alliance the latter part of September, 1917, recruited to full strength. It served under a temporary commander until it reached Camp Sheridan, Ala., and then Captain Paul Le Marche, of Cleveland, who had been assigned to the 146th Infantry, took command. Under his command the company became one of the best in the regiment and later gave a wonderful account of itself in the world war in France. It participated in every battle and engagement in which the 146th Infantry was engaged. In fact, its history is about parallel with that of Company C, Canton, which is given elsewhere. While the two companies served in separate battalions, there was the fellowship of being from the same county and relations were always very close. Company K did particularly good work in the first and second drives in Belgium where it saw a great deal of action.

Company Commanders of the unit since its organization have been: Charles C. Weybrecht, who in later years became colonel of the 146th Infantry; Captain Barton C. Squires (deceased), Captain Elliot Gyger, Captain Alton L. Atkinson, Captain William S. Jarret, Captain Fred Zang, Captain U. S. Wetzell (deceased), Captain H. H. Howe, Captain Paul Le-Marche, Captain Bowlan, and Captain Fred Mitchell. The latter took command of the company after the armistice and left it at Brest.

CHAPTER IV

Company A, 136th Machine Gun Battalion, Massillon

Company "A", 136th Machine Gun Battalion, of Massillon, organized as Company "K", 10th Ohio Infantry, was composed of Massillon and Minerva men with a few from small towns surrounding Massillon. Soon after declaration of war by the United States, Harry Curley, Massillon, and Benjamin Kilper, Canton, formulated the idea of organizing a company of Infantry in Massillon and made known their plans to a number of the young men of the town. They responded most heartily as did some 42 from Minerva. This was the nucleus around which the company was built.

Curley was commissioned a captain and Kilper a first lieutenant in the Ohio National Guard and placed in charge of the company by the Adjutant General. Little trouble was met in securing sufficient men and on July 15 when the entire National Guard was called into federal service the Massillon company contained 127 men who went to the first training camp, Camp Sheridan, Ala., with the organization.

The training period served in Massillon was from July 15, the date of call into federal service until September 16, 1917, when the company entrained along with the remainder of the 10th Infantry for Montgomery, Ala. Shortly after arrival at Camp Sheridan the designation of the organization was changed by War Department order from Co. "K" to Co. "A", 136th Machine Gun Battalion and remained such until mustered out.

Original officers of the Company who served during the training period at Camp Sheridan were: Capt. Harry Curley, 1st Lieut. Ben Kilper, and 2nd Lieut. H. G. Simpson. These officers were later transferred and the company went into battle with Capt. F. L. Pierce, Cleveland, who later became a major; 1st Lieut. Harry L. Rogers, Coshocton; 1st Lieut. Clyde Lindoff, Stuebenville; 2nd Lieut. Fred B. Wishard, Wooster; 2nd Lieut. Theodore A. Kluver, Cincinnati, and 2nd Lieut. John C. Litty, Salem.

The 136th M. G. Battalion was commanded by Major John A. Logan, of Cleveland, and was a part of the 74th Infantry Brigade under command of Brig. Gen. William V. McMaeken.

The training period at Camp Sheridan, Ala., consisted of all sorts of preliminary work and later when primary work was well under way machine guns were issued and range work started at the Elmore-co rifle range. This training period lasted from Sept. 18 to May 25, 1918, when the company entrained with the remainder of the battalion for Camp Lee, Va., to prepare for overseas duty.

At Camp Lee new guns were issued and work again started on the range there. While at Camp Lee 190 men were received from the replacement camp to bring the battalion up to full strength and Co. "A" received its share of these men. The training period and time for preparation for sailing at Camp Lee lasted from May 27 to June 21, 1918, when the battalion marched to City Point and embarked on the Pocahontas, sailing at midnight for Newport News. The next morning the battalion embarked on the liner Caserta. On June 23, 1918, the Caserta steamed out to sea and joined the remainder of the convoy which was to make the trip to France.

On the morning of July 5 the convoy passed Cape Finistere lighthouse and landed at Brest at 4:00 p. m. From the port of Brest they hiked to Camp Pontenazen and remained there until July 11 when they entrained at Brest for the trip overland to some unknown place. After several days of travelling across France, Company "A" detrained at Bamblain and hiked seven kilometers to Sauville.

At Sauville intensive machine gun training was taken up and range practice arranged. On July 24 the battalion entrained at Brevannes for Einvaux, arriving there the following day. Then came a hike of 27 kilometers to be done under full packs which means something like 70 odd pounds to the average soldier.

On the night of August 2, 1918, the battalion marched to Merviller in the Baccarat sector. Here Company "A" came under its first shell fire.

Orders in force during the battalion's stay in the Baccarat sector were such that little could be done in the way of offensive fighting, for the Americans were working in conjunction with the French. However, Company "A" suffered a few casualties on Sept. 8 when the enemy started shelling a patch of wood in which members of the second platoon were quietly sitting in the morning sunlight. Three men were killed during this shelling, but little of moment occurred from that date until on Sept. 15 the battalion was relieved by the 77th Division and moved to a small town not far from Bar le Duc.

After a rest of three days near Bar le Duc the battalion moved into the Foret de Hesse, in which the beginning of the Meuse-Argonne campaign was to take place. Nothing was done until Sept. 25 except to rest, train some men who were to fill important positions and get guns and equipment ready for the drive which opened the next morning. After 10 days' rest Co. "A" was in excellent spirits and the aspect of a battle opening early in the morning was looked upon with pleasure by most of the men.

At 10:30 p. m. on Sept. 25th Co. "A" went into position near Avocourt and remained on the alert until 5:30 a. m., Sept. 26, when the artillery barrage was to go up and open the way for an advance. Success was evident from the very start and by night of the first day the battalion was within a short distance of Montfaucon.

Montfaucon is officially credited to being captured by infantry of the 37th Division, supported by machine gun battalions and engineers. All this was accomplished during the initial attack on Sept. 26, 1918.

On Sept. 27 no progress was made on account of encountering an enemy stronghold just beyond Montfaucon. However, all difficulty was overcome on the third day of the drive and Ivery was captured toward the close of the day. On the fourth day Epinonville was reached and on the fifth day it was necessary to reorganize the battalion which then had but 263 men left out of 704.

Casualties during the Meuse-Argonne drive were numerous and dressing stations were filled to overflowing at all times, day and night. Roads were in frightful condition and hampered work of evacuating sick and wounded.

Following reorganization of the battalion into one company of 263 men they pushed on to Ciorges where during the night of the sixth day of the drive the 32nd Division took over the sector held by the 37th Division and what was left of Co. "A" returned to Recicourt for a rest of two days. During the night of Oct. 4, French camions driven by Chinese picked up the battalion at Recicourt and carried it to Shloy from which place they hiked to the St. Mihiel sector to relieve the 341st Machine Gun Battalion of the 89th Division.

A portion of the St. Mihiel sector was held for 10 days and it was during this time the fourth squad of the third platoon of Co. "A" was nearly wiped out when a mustard gas shell fell among them. Three men who were wounded later recovered. The others died instantly. On the night of Oct. 28 the 37th Division was relieved by the 28th Division and Co. "A" returned to Dongermain for a two days' rest.

On the morning of Oct. 20, Co. "A" entrained for Flanders and after traveling for two days detrained at Wonnebeke. From this point the battalion marched to Thielt. Here, while marching along the road it was learned by Capt. Pierce that the expected drive was to start at 5:30 a. m., Oct. 31. The company bivouaced at a cross road on the night of Oct. 30 and awoke the next morning to the sound of an American barrage. Shortly afterward a steady stream of prisoners started past to the rear. This position was held until 6:00 p. m. when they started moving toward Olsene, crossed the Lys river and took refuge for the night near Olsene in an old mill. During this action Co. "A" was a part of the corps reserve and for the most part did nothing but hike in an effort to keep up with the remainder of the division which was rapidly driving the enemy to his rear.

The second action participated in by Co. "A" came on Nov. 10 and at 4:00 a. m. position was taken up at Syngem, just west of the Escaut River. Here the company supported a battalion of the 147th Infantry. Considerable difficulty was met with in getting machine guns in position to support the infantry at this point and Capt. Pierce decided after some consideration to bring his men boldly across an open field. This was done resulting in subjecting the men to heavy enemy shell fire from both machine guns and artillery. However there was no other course open and the move was finally completed without noticeable loss. Only two men were wounded and these but slightly which did not require any expert attention from surgeons.

Following this successful operation and a slight advance by the infantry it was possible to cross the river to the east bank shortly after midnight. This was accomplished two kilometers south of the position formerly held. After crossing the river and getting under cover Capt. Pierce reported to the commanding officer, where he learned of the signing of the armistice at 5:00 a. m.

Following signing of the armistice the battalion remained in Belgium until January 15 when it entrained for Alencon, France. Until Feb. 17 Alencon was the station of Co. "A" when it moved to Mezieres-sous-Ballon and remained until March 1. On the afternoon of March 1 the battalion hiked to Beaumont where it entrained for Brest, arriving on the afternoon of March 2. At Brest numerous inspections were held until the morning of March 11 when it embarked on the U. S. S. Huntington. The Huntington docked at Hoboken on March 23, 1919.

Camp Merritt was reached on the afternoon of March 23 and here the battalion remained for a few days to prepare for returning to Ohio to parade before waiting friends and relatives. After several parades in larger Ohio cities the battalion returned to Camp Sherman and was mustered out on April 12, 1919.

CHAPTER V

145th Ambulance Company, Canton

To the uninitiated the work of an ambulance company in war is believed to consist merely in driving ambulances from battlefields to dressing stations and from dressing stations to hospitals, but to those who served in ambulance companies during the recent war, this is known to be untrue. Indeed, an ambulance company may be called upon to do all sorts of work from caring for sick and wounded, driving trucks or ambulances to ordinary labor—everything except bear arms against the enemy.

One of Stark County's most valuable contributions in the war was Ambulance Company No. 145, a part of the 112th Sanitary Train. Shortly after entry into the war by the United States several young men met in the Y. M. C. A. and were discussing various branches of the service in which they might enlist. After some discussion one of them mentioned the possibilities of organizing a company for medical work. It was decided to bring the matter to attention of city officials and other prominent citizens in an effort to enlist their aid. Communication with Col. Joseph Hall, Columbus, who then commanded the sanitary corps of the Ohio National Guard brought to this city Lieut. G. P. Lawrence, a Columbus physician who had just returned from service with the Ohio National Guard on the Mexican border.

Lawrence came to Canton, made several speeches and aroused considerable interest among the younger men who might be expected to enlist for service in the war. This resulted in the opening of a recruiting office and the formation of a motor ambulance company known as the 4th Ohio Ambulance Company.

On July 15, 1917, when National Guard units were mobilized in the state the 4th Ambulance Co. assembled at the Canton city auditorium where permanent headquarters were established. After the first few days work in earnest was started and rapid progress was made. Little was accomplished other than foot drills until after the middle of August when a large supply of uniforms and equipment arrived from the state arsenal at Columbus. After issuance of uniforms and equipment it became easier to drill, maneuver and execute army work. For the first time the 4th Ambulance Co. took on the appearance of a soldierly organization. Up to this time men had been drilling in civilian clothing.

From July 15 to September 30 constant drills were executed, together with several hours of lectures each day. Lectures were new to most of the men and proved exceptionally interesting since they dealt with physiology and anatomy for the most part. But in view of the fact that the organization was to be a motorized outfit, lectures on care and driving of motor ambulances was not neglected.

On Monday morning October 1, 1917, members of the 4th Ohio bid farewell to friends and relatives and entrained for Montgomery, Ala., the newly opened training camp for the Ohio National Guard Division. The trip to Montgomery through Columbus, Cincinnati, Louisville, Nashville and Birmingham was full of interest for many of the boys had never been south.

The troop train arrived at Montgomery late Tuesday night, but owing to lateness was allowed to remain in the yards until morning. Early in the morning cars were shifted onto another road and hauled out to the camp, some four miles. Upon arrival at the camp the company was greeted with many new and interesting sights. Everywhere new buildings were being erected.

As it was early in the morning troops who had arrived several weeks before, were out at drill. Everywhere the aspect bespoke war times and great preparation for what was to come across the sea. From the railroad yards the company hiked about a mile and officers were shown the site allotted for use of the company.

The camp was to be a "canvas village" and since the tents were not on the ground it was necessary to draw them from the quartermaster. This was not accomplished until late in the afternoon and dark found several squads without any tent. However, tents were finally secured and with the aid of flashlights, matches and camp illumination it was possible to make the tents fast enough to stand until morning when they erected properly and aligned.

During the next few days floors and walls were issued and work in earnest on getting the company camp into shape started. There was days of hot back-breaking work shovelling in the street which later became a model of cleanliness and sanitation as were many of the streets in the camp.

After the first week which was used principally in getting settled, drills and regular soldier routine started. A portion of the time during the first few weeks was used in cleaning cotton stubble off a field which afterward became one of the finest parade grounds in the camp.

Drills included school of the soldier, squad drill, platoon and section drill. Drill by company and drill by battalion. Interspersed with the drill were lectures on anatomy, first-aid the band of the 332nd regiment which included eight Cantonians, played a concert for the Prince of Wales.

Plans were under way at this time for the drive against Austrian forces, but no actual fighting was done by American troops for the time being. While located at Somma Compagna scene of many of Shakespeare's works.

From Somma Compagnia the regiment went to Vallegio sul Mincio in August and there prepared for entrance into the lines when the drive started. Camp Wallace, an American camp, was located here and for the first time real soldier comfort was obtained. The camp was a modern "canvas village" and contained some of the conveniences of the large American training camps. Here the regiment underwent more training and received additional equipment for the work that was to come.

On October 28, 1918, the entire regiment entered the lines at Treviso, 15 kilometers from the Piave Sector and 18 kilometers from Venice. When the drive opened the English, French and Italians crossed the Taglemento river and after a fierce struggle managed to hold their position. While awaiting the arrival of Italian troops to occupy the ground gained, the 332nd Infantry was thrown into the struggle and for a period of five hours met a fierce counter-attack from the enemy.

Official reports of the action showed five casualties which included one killed in action, one died of wounds and three slightly wounded. Corporal Kell, Massillon, was killed by shell fire.

The result of the action was that Udine, a historical Italian city which had been in the hands of enemy troops for four years, was liberated and the objective, Cormons, was reached. Following the action the 332nd regiment was left to occupy the ground retaken and remained in the sector from the Taglemento river to Cormons until the middle of November.

Headquarters of the first battalion was located at Treviso, second battalion at Cattailo, Montenegro, on the Dalmatian coast and the third battalion at the historical city of Fiume. On January 19 the regiment was transferred to Genoa to remain there until March 19, when sailing orders were issued to return to the United States.

The entire regiment was cited by the Italian government for its heroic work in the Austrian drive and one Cantonian was given the Italian War Cross. During its stay in Italy the band of the 332nd played several concerts for the King and Queen of Italy, for President Wilson when he visited there in January, for Premier Clemenceau of France and for Generals Pershing and Foch while they were on an inspection tour.

The band played one concert in Venice to what members believe to have been the largest audience to hear an American band during the war. The crowd was estimated conservatively at 60,000 persons.

CHAPTER VII

Stark Men Widely Scattered

Their praises unsung, because they were not connected with a unit principally made up of Stark County men and because they were placed in widely scattered organizations which were composed of men from all parts of America, there are hundreds of men from this county who served with great credit and valor to themselves, their homes and the organizations in which they were placed. Considerably more than half of the men from Stark county who saw service, were scattered hither and yon throughout the forces of Uncle Sam—some in the army, some in the navy, some in the marines. They were the volunteers who went into the regular army, navy and marine corps, and the selective service men who answered various calls as drafts were made upon the county.

It is said by the Canton draft boards that this county was represented in practically every camp in the United States. There were men from coast to coast, from Canada to Mexico. They were specialists along some particular line, or men who were sent to help fill up the organization of new divisions which were being formed rapidly. Hundreds of these men got overseas and into the actions while others were about on the point of going to France when the armistice ended the war.

The history of Stark county's part in the world war would not be complete, nor would it do justice, if it did not pay tribute to the unsung service of these men. Their's is not the glory of a unit from this county; little may be known locally of their organizations, nor may the praises be sung in the county of their regiments, but nevertheless, these men did valiant service and they personally have the satisfaction of knowing that they did "their bit" like all true Americans, and that they had as great a part as any in winning the struggle.

308th Engineers

Another Stark county unit which made an enviable record in France and Germany was the 308th Engineers. This organization was a part of the 83rd Division and trained at Camp Sherman under General Glenn. Most of the men went into service in the fall and winter of 1917-18, and the 308th Engineers spent some time at the Ohio camp. The regiment was made up principally of northeastern Ohio county men, including more than 100 from Stark county. The bulk of these were Canton men.

Going overseas with the division in June, 1918, the regiment was stationed at Le Mans. Shortly after their arrival in that area the 83rd Division became a replacement organization, and was split up, its men being sent to various organizations in the line. The 308th Engineer Regiment was held intact, as there was great need of troops of this classification. The regiment became attached to one of the army corps operating in the line, and as such, was called upon to work continuously in road building, erection of huts, theaters, etc., to make life easier for the doughboys.

After the armistice was signed the 308th was sent to Germany with the Army of Occupation, and it was while near Coblenz that the world's army record for building a pontoon bridge was established. This organization put a bridge across the Rhine river in less than two hours. They built theaters for the troops which were in Germany, and did numerous other tasks.

The regiment also had the honor of staying longest in France of any Stark county organization. It came home the latter part of June, 1919, and none of the Stark county men reached their homes until after July Fourth. The regiment had a number of casualties and deaths from disease and exposure, but the Stark county men were for the most part fortunate.

CANTON CHAPTER, A. R. C.

On Wednesday afternoon, February 28, 1917, the Canton Chapter, American Red Cross was founded at the home of Mrs. J. H. Himes, 904 Market Ave., N. Canton, Ohio. Foundation of the chapter at this time resulted from an appeal to the American Red Cross by Allied countries then engaged in the war with Germany, for supplies; and also for relief work to be done in Canton and adjacent territory.

Included in the jurisdiction of the Canton chapter were the following townships: Lake, Plain, Canton, Pike, Sandy, Osnaburg, Paris and Nimi-shillen.

The charter granted the Canton Chapter contained the names of 22 charter members, including the officers elected at the time of organization. These were: Mrs. J. H. Himes, director of Chapter; Norman Raff, chairman; Eleanor Garde, vice-chairman; Elmer E. Mack, treasurer; Miss Ruth McLain, assistant treasurer, and Miss Elizabeth Thomas, secretary.

Following the foundation of a chapter in Canton no time was lost in getting results. Some of the work in which the Red Cross figured prominently after the United States' entry in the war included maintenance of sewing rooms for the making of clothing and hospital materials, training classes for nurses, soldier's aid work, civilian relief, recruiting for overseas service of clerks, stenographers and nurses, organization of a motor corps and operation of an emergency hospital.

Since the ending of hostilities Nov. 11, 1918, and the subsequent return of Canton and Stark County soldiers, the Red Cross has handled more than 1,500 soldiers and their families. It has assisted over 200 disabled soldiers to secure competent medical attention, to secure vocational training which will fit them for pursuit of civil occupation and one year after the signing of the armistice finds the Canton chapter still working on about 100 uncompleted cases.

Fifteen ex-soldiers have been sent to colleges and universities to enable them to learn some vocation with which they can become self-supporting. Many others have been found positions in manufacturing plants where they will have every opportunity to learn some useful and lucrative employment.

Norman Raff was succeeded as chairman of the chapter by J. H. Himes, who acted in that capacity until September, 1919, when he resigned and C. N. Vicary was elected to take his place. Other officers of the present organization are: W. P. English, vice-chairman; Miss Eleanor Garde, secretary and assistant treasurer, and Elmer E. Mach, treasurer.

A chronological history of Canton chapter shows many interesting things about its activity from the time of organization until the present. Beginning with the organization in February, 1917, the next step was the opening of sewing rooms for the making of hospital equipment and clothing.

Thousands of bandages were made during the operation of the sewing rooms which were first opened in the New Vicary Building, Market Ave. N. Comfort bags for soldiers and hospital clothing also were among the first articles made.

On April 11, training classes were organized under the leadership of Miss Mabel Firestone who had served during the Mexican trouble in 1916-17 as an Army nurse.

From April 16 to 21, after the United States' entry into war, a membership campaign was conducted under the leadership of George E. Lundy of the Y. M. C. A. During this time several hundred thousand dollars were secured for the cause.

Canton men at this time were beginning to feel the call of the country and enlistment was heavy. At this time a soldier's aid committee headed by ex-Mayor C. A. Stolberg was organized to care for departed soldiers' families. Following this, a civilian relief committee was formed with A. B. Clark at the head. This committee cooperated with the Associated Charities in caring for the needy.

During the summer of 1917, the work rooms were moved to the Harris Arcade where more room was secured, but before long, work increased until it was necessary to move to the Geo. D. Harter Bank Building and into larger rooms. At this time many ladies were reporting each day to sew on hospital equipment and garments. Mrs. G. A. Leonard was director of the chapter at this time and was later succeeded by Mrs. Cunningham.

Another accomplishment during the summer was the organization of the following auxiliaries: Hartville, Mrs. I. O. Getz in charge; Waynesburg, Mrs. Ira Pence in charge; Magnolia, Mrs. Frank Elson in charge; East Canton, Mrs. M. B. Swallen; North Canton, Mr. Evans and Mrs. L. G. Schrantz; East Sparta, Mrs. C. R. Sponhauer; Louisville, Arthur Keim; Uniontown, Rev. Mr. Hassler; Greentown, Mrs. Sadie Smith. Workrooms were maintained in several of the branches.

A Junior Red Cross Chapter was organized in February, 1918, one year after foundation of the Canton Chapter, with Miss Ruth Reynolds as chairman. Workrooms were opened in the City Auditorium on April 1, and a junior health crusade started February 1, 1919, and lasted for a period of 15 weeks.

During the month of June, 1918, the Canton Chapter was asked to cooperate with the National Organization in recruiting nurses for overseas service. This activity resulted in enrollment of the following nurses: Mrs. Josephine Bifoss, Miss Susan Young, Miss Maud Hudson, Miss Myrtle Veach, Miss Margaret Prendeville, Miss Margaret Halter, Miss Frances Rutledge, Miss Frances Ball, Miss Daisy Selser, Miss Mary McCreasy, Miss Caeserie Wernet, Miss Mary Misere, Miss Carrie Myers, Miss Esther Owens, Miss Vera Hawkins, Miss Muriel Buchanan, Miss Zetta Bowers, Miss Catherine Friedhof, Miss Frances Fiala, Miss Nina Hawkins, Miss Ella Higgins, Miss Bessie Miller, Miss Catherine McCutcheon, Miss Stella Cizek, Miss Emily Malley, Miss Creta Dollison, Miss Alice Portmann, Miss Oeta Lieb, Miss Maud VanHorn and Miss Anna Davies.

The basement of the First Congregational Church, Tuscarawas St. West, was the scene of the opening of the Red Cross Shops. Here everything from a paper of pins to motor cars was sold. Departments included in the shops were: millinery, infant, furniture, and tea gardens. The shops opened with one of the most spectacular parades ever held in Canton.

During the operation of the Red Cross shops, it was necessary to organize a Motor Corps for the transportation of articles to and from the shops. The late Miss Ann Zollars, who died on October 3, 1919, at the Neuilly Red Cross Hospital, France, of pneumonia, was the first captain and organizer of the motor corps. It was a result of her work with the local organization that she went to France on January 25, 1919, and joined Mrs. Thomas Seaton's organization of American girls who were assisting the Erte Bein du Blessean organization of French and American women doing relief work in France. She was driving relief trucks in the vicinity of Paris when taken ill.

During the war when more than 1,000 Canton and Stark County men were in France and other foreign countries, a foreign department was maintained under the management of Jerome V. Matyas, manager of the foreign department of the Dime Savings Bank. Through this department many matters were transacted which had to do with reports of men who were missing and from whom communication could not be gotten.

During the influenza epidemic in the fall and winter of 1918, the Red Cross secured the use of the Catholic Club House, Sixth Street Northwest, for use as an emergency hospital. There, Sisters Dorothy and Beatrice supervised the care of thousands of "flu" patients and assisted materially in preventing further spread of the plague which took as its toll, thousands of persons. In the parish house of the Episcopal church another emergency hospital was maintained for the afflicted orphans.

From December 16 to 23, 1918, another membership campaign was conducted which resulted in securing 43,000 members for the Canton Chapter.

With the return of soldiers which started in February, a new civilian relief committee was organized owing to the larger scope of work to be done. This committee now consists of Lewis R. Zollars, chairman; Eugene V. Bulleit, executive secretary; Mrs. C. W. Ufford, Mrs. Frank McGowan, Dr. J. P. DeWitt, Sumner McDowell, Herve W. Miner and Clarence Fisher.

Present officers of the Canton Chapter American Red Cross are located in a suite in the Central Savings Bank Building, Tuscarawas St. West. From there administration work is carried out under directions of officers and relief work for ex-service men is conducted under the supervision of Mr. Bulleit.

Plans of the Red Cross now include maintenance of a permanent organization to look after the welfare of ex-soldiers and all needy persons. The Red Cross program for the future includes a campaign of education to combat epidemics of contagious diseases and relief work in case of any outbreak. The Red Cross in Canton looks forward to a prosperous future and solicits the heartiest cooperation of all in carrying out humanitarian work and humanitarian ideals.

THE AMERICAN RED CROSS

Alliance, Ohio, Chapter

Headquarters, Alliance Bank Bldg.

Alliance, Ohio

THIS Chapter was organized April 15, 1917. Dr. W. H. McMaster was elected Chairman, and Miss Mary Kay, Executive Secretary. The first call for active emergency service was for Comfort Kits for the soldiers. The committee of which Mrs. F. E. Dussel was Chairman, made 1,200 Comfort Kits and 1,200 housewives. The Surgical Dressing Department, under Miss Gertrude Kay, produced a total of 51,691 dressings. The knitting room, in charge of Miss Blanche Keplinger, turned out 6,770 knitted articles. After the military knitting was completed, Mrs. A. J. Morris directed the knitting for refugees. The Hospital Supplies, under Mrs. Morris Geiger, made a total of 10,200 garments and 900 property bags. The Civilian Department, under Miss Aurie Buck, Executive Secretary, served 1,131 families of men who were in the service. The classes in First Aid and Home Dressing was conducted by the Educational Department, of which Mrs. Joseph Koch was the Executive Secretary. The Roll Call for junior members was answered by 3,971 school children, who gave hundreds of cookies and doughnuts and thousands of magazines, and many pounds of candy to the Canteen, sold 1,500 Red Cross magazines in six months, and made 1,950 refugee garments. This work was directed by Miss Frances Eberhart. The three drives for worn clothing, two of which were directed by Mrs. G. L. King, and the third by Mrs. S. L. Geiger, resulted in the collection of 19,765 lbs. of garments and shoes.

The Alliance Canteen from its beginning on September 9, 1918, to May 1, 1919, served 83,140 service men. Too much cannot be said of the Commandant, Mrs. G. L. King. A leader of fine personality and splendid executive ability, big hearted, sympathetic and tireless. A woman who had positive genius for mothering the boys and sending them on their way full of good cheer. Commandant King, organized 120 women in twelve alternating units, representing leading fraternal, religious and social organizations. The fine service of these women has made possible handling, to the best advantage, the immense quantities of supplies used. The night trains, of which there were many, were cared for by Mt. Union College and Y. M. C. A. men. It was unnecessary to spend the money allotted by the Red Cross because of voluntary cash contributions, together with immense quantities of home made cookies and doughnuts. These contributions also included great baskets of flowers, home made candy, Easter eggs, mirrors, pocket combs, snap-shots forwarded to the boys' mothers whose addresses were taken, newspapers, victrola records, and everything that could be thought of to bring joy to the soldier lads.

The many courtesies shown the Canteen workers by the Pennsylvania Company, and the valuable help of the Salvation Army, and the splendid loyalty of citizens of Alliance, and Washington, Lexington and Marlboro Townships, who so promptly responded to the needs of the workers when issued in the Red Cross Column of the Alliance Review, helped to make the great work a success.

Like all unselfish service, the work of the Alliance Canteen has reacted on the community: A spirit of generosity, of cooperation, of democracy, and a better understanding of the principles of our republic, that "all men are created equal" remain with us as a result of the ideals observed in this service.

A WORKROOM IN MASSILLON, OHIO, RED CROSS HEADQUARTERS

A GROUP OF RED CROSS WORKERS, MASSILLON, OHIO

It is with sincere regret that out of almost five thousand photographs the ones on this page were the only ones we were unable to identify. These have been held until the very last in the hopes that we would be able to procure the identity of each. In this we were disappointed but feeling that they should be shown, even incomplete and with the hopes that the friends of these soldiers would recognize them and supply in their thoughts the missing names, biography and military history that unfortunately we were unable to produce.

The first contingent consisted of twenty men who were sent to Camp Sherman, Sept. 7, 1917. These men were all volunteers and were chosen without respect to order number. Under the calls prior to January 1, 1918, this board sent 410 men to Camp Sherman, but later calls took men to Camps Sherman, Gordon, Jackson, Training Schools and Camps for Special Training in all parts of the country.

With the adoption of the questionnaire the Legal Advisory Board was organized for assisting the registrants in filling out their questionnaires. The members of this board were James H. Robertson, Chairman, Loren E. Souers and Charles S. Weintraub.

These were assisted by about forty associate members consisting of attorneys and professional men of the city.

The first registration was held June 5, 1917. This included all men between the ages of twenty-one and thirty-one years. The second registration was held June 5, 1918. This included all men who had attained the age of twenty-one after June 5, 1917. The third registration was held August 5, 1918, for all men who became twenty-one after June 5, 1918. The fourth registration was held Sept. 12, 1918, and included all men, not previously registered, between the ages of 18 and 45 years. Approximately 15,200 men were furnished by this board.

The Board of Instruction was later organized and their duty was to instruct the men prior to leaving for camps, but on account of the sudden termination of hostilities only a few preliminary meetings of this board were held with prospective service men.

HISTORY

Date of appointment, June 23, 1917. Received instruction for organization at 9 A. M., June 30, 1917. Met in the Council Chamber of the City Hall at 4 P. M. and organization effected. Reported by telegram to governor Cox at 5 P. M. that organization was completed. Reconvened at 8 o'clock A. M., July 5, 1917, and commenced the regular work of the Board. First call for registrants to report for physical examination was issued July 28. First contingent of fifteen men was sent to Camp Sherman, September 7, 1917. Total number of registrants classified by the Board was as follows: Registrants of June 5, 1917, 3,865; Registrants of June 5, 1918, 390; Registrants of August 24, 1918, 70; Registrants of September 12, 1917, 5,401; total 9,726. Number of contingents sent, 39, total number of persons inducted and sent to camps, 1,166.

Every man entrained reached the designated camp. Before each contingent entrained a photograph of the contingent was made, an inspirational address was made to them by some prominent citizen, a parade was held in their honor and a crowd of their fellow citizens often numbering from 5,000 to 10,000 persons assembled in their honor to wish them Godspeed and good luck. In every case where an appeal was taken to the Adjutant's Office of the State or to the Provost Marshal's Office of the United States, the decision of the Local Board was sustained. Its findings were reversed by the District Board in but one case. The work of the Board was officially closed March 31, 1919, at which time the work of all boards was closed by action of the government. The membership of the Board was not changed during the war.

The following men were elected officers and members of the Board of Directors: R. E. Bebb, Chairman; H. H. Timken, Vice Chairman; W. G. Saxton, Treasurer; G. E. Lundy, Executive Secretary; P. B. At the request of the United States Housing Commission a survey of the city was made in August, 1918. This survey was for the purpose of determining the housing conditions of the city looking toward the bringing of a large number of workmen to the city to take care of contracts already placed and to be placed in Canton for war materials.

A Committee on Housing and Transportation was appointed composed of E. A. Bowman, Chairman, P. E. Mooek, and Julius Whiting. The Armistice put an end to the labors of this committee before they really got organized.

At the request of the State Council of National Defense a committee of Non-War Construction was appointed with John O'Dea, Chairman, E. H. Birney, Massillon, and Chas. Y. Kay, of Alliance, but the activities of this Committee, like those of the Housing and Transportation Committee, were ended by the armistice before they had really begun.

The Council of National Defense took over the responsibility of raising funds for a War Chest in the city of Canton and adjacent townships. This campaign was promoted during the month of January, but was not successful in raising the $500,000.00 set as the objective, only $343,000.00 being raised. The Committees in the promotion of this campaign were as follows:

STARK COUNTY WAR SAVINGS ACTIVITIES

ARTHUR E. BERKLEY
Chairman Stark County
W. S. S. Committee

CHARLES W. WILD
Secretary Stark County
W. S. S. Committee

Stark County enjoyed the distinction during the war year of 1918 of being the first county in the entire United States having a population in excess of 100,000 to reach its quota, both in point of pledges as well as actual cash deposited in the coffers of the United States Treasury. This unusual honor which brought the county and the committee before the eyes of the Nation, came as the result of a year of strenuous activity.

During the early months of the year the campaign activities were largely of an educational nature, the committee securing the hearty co-operation of the newspapers, schools, merchants, manufacturers, post office employees, theaters and practically every organization that reached large numbers of persons.

In June, when the educational program was considered to have reached a stage to justify it, a very intensive, sweeping, soliciting campaign for pledges and subscriptions was conducted. This campaign was operated simultaneously in Canton, Massillon, Alliance and twenty-four rural communities.

The drive at Canton was opened with an imitation German invasion of the city. The "attack" was made suddenly and wholly unexpectedly at 9:00 o'clock on the Saturday evening preceding the drive. Without any warning, whatever, the city electric lights were suddenly dimmed, in some sections entirely extinguished, street car service was halted, the fire alarm sounded the riot call, church bells rang excitedly, factory whistles blew, the city fire apparatus, police patrols and ambulances dashed through the darkened streets, their gongs clanging madly and all the while a thunderous cannonade shook the city with fear. As citizens gathered in groups, boy scouts, assuming the role of news boys, distributed "extras" in all sections of the city, and as men and women read "by the light of the star shells," the reason for it all became clear. Though it was only—and fortunately only—a sham invasion, it served to bring home to the people the seriousness of the war and did much to pave the way for the army of solicitors who took the field the following week.

In Canton alone, this drive embraced more than 300 men and 400 women. For nine days the city had but one ambition—the reaching of the war savings quota. The newspapers co-operated most liberally and an extensive advertising campaign flashed its messages incessantly. Ministers in more than thirty churches delivered war savings sermons, a war savings "sing" was conducted at Nimisila Park, in which thousands participated, thirty booths were erected at various points from which cash sales of war savings stamps were made, a U. S. Navy dirigible bombarded the city in a day-light attack with war savings bombs and a contingent of wounded Canadian heroes spoke of their war experiences on street corners, at theaters and in factories.

As a result of this effort a sufficient volume of pledges was secured to exceed the quota and the campaign efforts during the remainder of the year were directed not only to the collection of these subscriptions, but also to the making of additional sales, with the result that at the conclusion of the year, total cash sales of war savings stamps had exceeded $3,400,000.00 face value.

In the course of the year's campaign, a great many honors and distinctions were heaped upon the county. The record of the schools was among the best in the state and nation. On the occasion of a special visit by Governor Cox on May 10th a pilgrimage of twenty-five thousand children, the largest parade in the history of the state, was made to the McKinley monument to hear an address by the Governor. During the summer Stark County schools participated with the other schools of Ohio in a state wide contest, known as the Vacation Thrift Contest, with the result that first honors were awarded to Miss Florence Tanner, a Canton girl.

Mr. Arthur E. Berkley of Canton was chairman of the county committee, having been appointed by H. P. Wolfe, State Director of the Ohio War Savings Committee. Mr. Berkley in turn appointed Charles W. Wild as secretary and in direct charge of all the newspaper editorial matter; W. G. Saxton, treasurer; R. M. Nicholson as chairman of the committee of the Adcraft Club on Display Advertising; W. C. Laiblin, Canton, chairman; W. E. N. Hemperly, Massillon, chairman; Harry J. Roach, Alliance, chairman; and twenty-four sub-chairmen in charge of the various rural communities.

As Canton chairman, Mr. Laiblin was assisted during the June drive for pledges by R. V. Mitchell, who presided at the workers' meetings, George S. Mellborne, Wm. J. Morgan, Joseph Markley and L. J. Noaker, who acted as Generals in charge of the men solicitors and George W. Mobary, who headed the women's division, which in turn was in the immediate charge of Generals Miss Minnie Langenbach, Mrs. Dr. C. E. Exline, Mrs. Frank Douds, Mrs. E. B. Kelly and Miss Louise Rabe.

A permanent County Advisory Board appointed for the duration of the campaign consisted of Arthur E. Berkley, C. W. Wild, W. G. Saxton, W. C. Laiblin, R. M. Nicholson, R. V. Mitchell, H. H. Timken, R. E. Bebb, Phil J. Bernower, Harry Copenhaver, Clayton L. Carver, A. M. Dueber, Howard Fawcett, Vernon B. Fridley, H. M. Geiger, Dr. T. Wallis Grose, Elmer Gibbs, J. H. Himes, F. G. Harrison, Harry Ross Jones, J. H. Kenny, Emil Kauffman, E. A. Langenbach, G. A. Leonard, E. B. Lord, Austin Lynch, Sr., H. C. Milligan, George W. Mobarry, John F. O'Dea, Harry J. Roach, C. E. Stuart, J. Edmund Sell, Niles A. Sponseller and O. F. Transue.

In all more than four thousand persons assisted in conducting the various war savings activities of the year and if space would permit it, hundreds of persons should be quoted whose co-operation and personal sacrifice entitled them to far more than an honorable mention.

The campaign opened on June 24th. Luncheons were furnished by the ladies of the churches of the City of Massillon, Daughters of American Revolution, and Daughters of Veterans, under the direction of the Women's Council for National Defense, Miss Bertha Martin, chairman.

Committee members met for reports each noonday at the Second Presbyterian Church rooms where luncheon was served. Reports were made each day when local and other speakers addressed the members of the teams on subjects of national interest.

In the five day canvass, sufficient subscriptions and cash sales were made to cover the quota of the city and a public demonstration was held celebrating the event, including the interment of the Kaiser, with abundance of red fire, and appropriate music by the Massillon bands, the outdoor ceremony being attended by fully five thousand people.

During the course of the campaign valuable assistance was given in the collection of subscriptions and the sale of additional stamps by young men in the community who were placed in the deferred classification by the Draft Board, the services being voluntary and cheerfully given in an effort to contribute to the success of the boys who had gone abroad.

The campaign was noticeably conspicuous from the fact that all personal feelings, political differences and religious convictions were put aside and the entire community pulled together in the one common purpose.

The Canton Four-Minute Men

At the outset of the war, when the government organized the 4MM organization throughout the nation, a local chapter was formed in Canton with John H. Barnes as chairman. The work before the group of men thus called together was to present to the public, through the medium of the theatres, motion picture shows and all other meetings that could be reached, the sum and substance of various governmental activities as well as various topics which would enlighten the public on the matter of the why and wherefore of the World War.

In November of nineteen seventeen, Rabbi Straus who had recently made Canton his home, and who had been affiliated with the same organization in Allen County, was made city chairman and Mr. Barnes became county chairman of the local organization. All men thus called to the colors as public speakers were commissioned by the government through the Committee of Public Information and on December twenty-fifth, nineteen nineteen, were duly discharged.

An idea of the work done by this organization may be obtained from the report of one of the speakers who, during the life of the 4MM made at least one hundred and fifty talks and addressed a total audience the size of the population of Stark County.

Record of the Canton Adcraft Club War Work

R. M. NICHOLSON, Pres.

Conducted the entire advertising campaign for War Savings. Stark County was the first county with population exceeding 100,000 to go over its quota both in pledges and cash sales.

The Adcraft Club participated in the Americanization parade on July 4th, contributing a very beautiful float.

The Adcraft Club organized the Yellow Dog Clubbers Club, securing over 12,000 members. The purpose of this club was to stamp out German propaganda both by means of advertising and personal work. It succeeded in practically stopping the spread of German made stories and rumors in this community.

The Adcraft Club served as a publicity committee for the Home Guard in their fund raising campaign.

The club furnished 63 men for registration work and was highly complimented by government officials for its efficient co-operation.

The Adcraft Club organized flying squadrons to assist and bring small towns of the county up to their quota in War Savings Stamps.

Members of the Adcraft Club conducted the advertising for all the Liberty Loan campaigns.

The club handled all publicity for the Red Cross membership drive in 1918, which drive resulted in more memberships being sold than there are adults in Canton.

The club handled the advertising campaign for the Victory Safe Drive. Practically all of the club members participated in all the soliciting campaigns thruout the war period including Red Cross, Liberty Loan, War Savings, etc.

The Sun Shine division of the club prepared semi-monthly letters and mailed to the members in service. These letters circulated widely and were greatly appreciated by all those who had the opportunity to read them.

After the war the club prepared and published a series of reconstruction advertisements which were considered of great value to the community.

The Tusco Club

Alliance, Ohio

The Tusco Club of Alliance, Ohio, was formed in 1913. It was originally composed of forty members, all of whom were High School men.

When the United States entered the war in 1917 there were ninety-six members in the Club. During the war all but eleven of these men were in the service, either in the Army, Navy or Marines. Seven of the men not in the service were under eighteen years of age and attending High School. The other four held responsible government positions.

Therefore the Tusco Club had 95% of its members actually in the service or 100% connected with the Government. That is considering those over eighteen years of age.

Members of the Club saw action from the Flanders Front in Belgium to the battle torn fields of sunny Italy. One Club man was killed at Belleau Woods and one contracted pneumonia on the Flanders Front and died shortly afterward. A number of others were severely wounded but recovered.

Stark County Industries in the War

It is a matter of pride in Stark County that during the war the manufacturers turned their plants over to the government for the manufacture of war material and cooperated in every way in giving 100% production.

Thousands of men and women, many of whom labored because it was their desire to do their bit and saw that their labor was necessary towards helping to win the war, devoted their entire time to this work. These people worked long hours and faithfully gave their strength and talents to the enormous task of turning the wheels of production. While sons, brothers, fathers and sweethearts were in the thick of the battle, this industrial army, consisting of women, old men, girls and youth, donned overalls and applied themselves to the great important business of holding the second line of defense.

Stark County has the reputation of being one of the most patriotic counties in the United States, and the employees working in the various industrial plants throughout the county responded willingly and rapidly to every request made by the government in the Liberty Loan, Red Cross, War Saving Stamp Drives, etc., and cheerfully gave a large percent of their earnings to the great cause.

They willingly saved food at the request of the Food Administration, saved fuel when the Fuel Administration asked it, and gave their time night or day to the task of furnishing supplies. Theirs was not the glory of battle in the trenches, they could not win the Croix de Guerre for some valorous deed; and their praises will never be sung by poets, but their work was just as essential toward winning the war as that of the brave boys who fought in Flanders or in sunny Italy.

The following articles from a few of the Stark County plants are indicative of what was done in every factory in the County. The reader can form an idea of how our industries rallied to the call of our country, and with an industrial army twenty times the strength of our fighting forces manufactured and kept sending a ceaseless stream of supplies and material for the boys in the first line of defense.

United Alloy Steel Corporation

Canton, Ohio

Investigation shows the United Alloy Steel Corporation to have been a large contributor to the successful prosecution of the World War, both as regards the company's production and also its other more indirect activities.

The entire production of high grade alloy and common steels, amounting to more than 500,000 tons per year, was made under the direct authorization of the United States Government, and was used in the manufacture of shells, airplanes, automobile trucks, tractors, tanks, gun forgings, etc., not only for the United States Government, but for England, France and Italy as well.

The company is further credited with the honor of developing in a commercial way the manufacture of Chrome-Nickel-Molybdenum Steel, which special grade of steel, properly manufactured, contributed much to the success of the Liberty motor. The same can also be said of Silico-Nickel-Zirconium Steel, and its success as armor plate for tanks.

In all this development the Government recognized this corporation's facilities and technical experts to the extent of selecting them. Because of their experience in iron and steel these experts were appointed on committees for improving the quality of steel and forgings for aircraft engines and for the standardization of aircraft steels for the United States Government, Great Britain and Canada.

The corporation and its employees did their full share in aiding in the financing of the war through the purchase of Liberty Bonds. Each employee in the corporation purchased one or more bonds in each of the five bond campaigns; the total amount of bonds sold to the corporation and its employees being $2,250,000, or 15% of the quota asked of the City of Canton.

The number of employees called into the Government service from this organization was 334; number of deaths in service 8; number re-employed during six months after the armistice 249. The company re-employed every former employee applying for work.

While due honor should be given to the men who left home or country to serve in the army or navy, and who endured the hardships of war, yet we should not overlook the employees of the various industries who desired to be with the boys at the front, but who were kept from "going to war" by the pressing need for skilled men where years of training were required to prevent errors in manufacture which might mean faulty airplanes, defective gun forgings, weak ambulance or motor truck axles, with the consequent fatalities and serious delays.

The official staff of this corporation wish to commend and give due recognition to its employees for their sincere application to duty during the time when the need for special steel was greater than at any other time in the history of the world.

The appeal on the part of the Government for the First War Loan gave the executives of The Timken Roller Bearing Company the inspiration which resulted in the formation of a permanent War Work Committee to which was referred the conduct in the factory and office of the campaign for the raising of the Timken quota of this loan.

The War Work Committee in its original form was made up of the following members:—M. T. Lothrop, Assistant Factory Manager; F. T. MacKay, Employment Manager; and J. F. Strough, Assistant Secretary.

Immediately the committee organized for business and proceeded to formulate plans for putting over the first loan. The various departments in factory and office were grouped in natural divisions, placed under captains and each group given the name of one of the ball teams in the big league. The line-up was as follows:

In later campaigns Steve Finley captained the Tigers and Fred Lange the Cubs.

This organization did its work so well that when the returns were all in it was found that the Timken Employees had bought $84,000 worth of bonds.

In the Second Loan the competition between the teams was so keen that bonds were sold to 90% of the employees, the total sales reaching the figure of $149,500, the average sale per employee buying bonds being $64.00.

When the call went forth for the Third Loan the War Work Committee set up as a goal, "A bond for every employee in the Timken Plant" and all records were eclipsed by the sale of $158,500 worth of bonds to 98% of the employees. At this time the canvass for bonds covered about 2,700 employees in factory and office.

The value of the permanent War Work Committee and the wisdom of the policy became more and more apparent as each new demand was made upon us for one war activity or another. All campaigns for the raising of funds were referred to this Committee, which after handling several loans, Red Cross Drives, Y. M. C. A., and War Savings Stamp campaigns, had acquired the experience of veterans and were ready to attempt anything that Uncle Sam proposed to help win the war.

Add to the permanent War Work Committee directing the work, the permanent staff of captains looking after the work of actual solicitation and you have a small army of seasoned campaigners.

The Fourth Loan called for all the accumulated experience and pep of previous campaigns. Several meetings were held with the team captains and the War Work Committee. When the work was done \$294,700 worth of bonds had been sold to 99 $\frac{1}{2}$ % of the total number of employees, by that time over three thousand in number. The average purchase per employee of this issue was over \$90.00.

In the Victory Loan the total sales were $192,750, well over the quota set for the Timken plant.

Summing up the whole series of War Work Activities the men and women in the Timken organization gave a total of nearly a million dollars, $955,450 to help win the great struggle. In this figure is included $76,000 for War Savings Stamps, Red Cross, Y. M. C. A., and other drives.

All this time the Timken plant was giving of the best of its men for war service. Men were dropping out quietly, day by day, saying nothing of the big job they were about to tackle. Investigation showed that they were leaving to enlist for overseas service. This continued until the draft was called for, when large inroads were made upon the forces of young men. In all, as nearly as can be determined, there were more than 330 men who went into the service from the Timken factory and office.

The Timken product, too, played its part in the winning of the scrap overseas.

Thousands of Timken Bearings went across the Atlantic in motor trucks and passenger car for war service. Dependability was a prime requisite in truck or passenger car in the field when the movement of ammunition or forces was a vital necessity and when ambulance and supply cars must be kept in service.

Even our enemy had a good word to say for Timken Bearings, for in writing of captured trucks they say that "The life of Timken Bearings is very long and in many cases they outlast the car. This has been very clearly demonstrated on captured trucks." Also, "They are in almost perfect condition even in cars of the older types, which is remarkable if we consider the hard service and little or no attention during war conditions."

Besides the bearings for motor trucks, passenger cars, and tanks—the automotive division of the work of carrying on the war—the Timken Company was called upon for service in many more or less difficult propositions in the way of special analyses or shapes. These contracts covered material for the navy such as boat davits, and in the air service for aeroplane parts where strong, lightweight tubing was needed for landing gear and the like.

So Timken products, as well as Timken men, saw service on the land, the sea, and in the air.
